County fair season means something a little different to everyone. For some, it's the once-a-year excuse to indulge in funnel cakes, cheer at the rodeo, or stroll through rows of 4-H and FFA exhibits. For others, especially the kids and families who've spent months preparing, it's a fast-paced stretch of final grooming, project finishing, and perfecting those baked goods just in time for judging.

Even with the chaos, fairs offer something truly special. They teach our youth the value of hard work, responsibility, and seeing a project through. They keep agriculture and home economics alive and thriving, ensuring the next generation learns how to build, create, and contribute. And nothing compares to watching a young exhibitor earn that first ribbon. Their excitement, the pride, and the friendships formed along the way never lose their shine.

Many county fairs will have wrapped up by the time this issue reaches you, but the Nebraska State Fair is right around the corner. The Nebraska Angus Association is excited to be part of this year's event and looks forward to supporting our Angus breeders throughout the show. For those planning to exhibit, here are the key details:

Early entry deadline: August 10

Late entry deadline: August 15 (late fees double)

Entry portal: Nebraska State Fair Livestock Exhibitors

Open Beef Show: September 2 at 9:00 AM

Angus Ring: Ring 1, following Red Angus

Check-in: At your stall the day before; cattle must be in place by 10 AM

Nebraska Bred & Owned Awards:

$500 split between the top bull and female

Once the State Fair wraps up, we'll roll right into the Nebraska Angus Tour, held September 27–28 in the North Platte area and this year's lineup is outstanding. Our headquarters will be at the Holiday Inn in North Platte. The tour kicks off with our 2nd annual three-person golf tournament, followed by cattle pen displays, the annual meeting, and our banquet and awards program at the fairgrounds. Day two includes ranch visits, sponsor presentations, additional cattle displays, and a special stop at Sustainable Beef. Registration is available at www.nebraskaangus.org under the Events & Programs tab. We'll once again be using QR codes for easy sign-up. Simply open the flyer on your device, scan the QR code with your phone's camera, and follow the link to the registration form. Payments can be mailed to: Nebraska Angus Association, PO Box 245, Long Pine, NE 69217. If technology isn't your thing, just reach out and I will be happy to get you registered. We hope you'll join us for this year's tour. It promises excellent Angus cattle, great food, plenty of socializing, and the excitement of a heifer donated by Twisted J Angus for the raffle. Keep an eye on our Facebook page for updates and highlights.

Summer is slipping by quickly, but there's still plenty to look forward to. Enjoy these last warm weeks and the early days of fall and we can't wait to see you at the upcoming Nebraska Angus Association events!

Sincerely,
Margo Lehn

PRESIDENT SPEAKS

By: Adam Sellman, NAA President

As we move through another challenging Nebraska summer, many of our members continue to face persistent drought conditions. While rainfall has been welcomed in isolated areas, much of the state remains short on moisture, and the effects are evident in our pastures, hay production, and water supplies. These conditions require difficult management decisions, but they also remind us of the resilience and determination that define Nebraska cattle producers.

One strategy many producers are considering is early weaning. Although it is never an easy decision, early weaning can significantly reduce the nutritional demands on cows, helping maintain body condition while preserving limited forage resources. Every operation is different, and each producer must evaluate what is best for their herd, but adapting to current conditions can position both cows and calves for long-term success.

The encouraging news is that the cattle market continues to provide optimism. Demand for quality Angus genetics remains strong, and calf prices continue to reward producers who have invested in sound genetics, good management, and herd health. Even in a year filled with weather challenges, the value of producing high-quality Angus cattle has never been more apparent.

These market conditions serve as a reminder that the investments we make in our breeding programs pay dividends well beyond a single season. Nebraska Angus breeders have built a reputation for producing cattle that perform efficiently, add value throughout the supply chain, and meet the needs of commercial producers across the country.

As we navigate the remainder of the summer, I encourage everyone to continue supporting one another. Agriculture has always been built on strong communities, and our Angus family is no exception. Whether sharing ideas, lending a helping hand, or simply checking in with a neighbor, those small acts of support make a meaningful difference during challenging times.

Thank you for your continued commitment to the Nebraska Angus Association and to the Angus breed. I hope favorable weather arrives soon and that the strong cattle market continues to provide opportunities for all of our members. I look forward to seeing many of you at upcoming Nebraska Angus events and wish you a safe and successful season.

Sincerely,

Adam Sellman

AMERICAN ANGUS ASS. BOARD OF DIRECTORS

By: Danny Poss, AAA Board Member

Dear Fellow Nebraska Angus Breeders,

Summer is always an enjoyable time of the year in the Angus business because it gives us the opportunity to watch our junior members grow-not only as cattlemen and cattlemen, but as leaders.

The 2026 National Junior Angus Show in Louisville, Kentucky, was another tremendous success. Congratulations to all the juniors, parents, volunteers, and supporters who invested countless hours to make the event memorable. While the showring is certainly a highlight, the National Junior Angus Show is about so much more than exhibiting cattle. Throughout the week, juniors had the opportunity to compete in events such as livestock judging, quiz bowl, public speaking, team sales, photography, graphic design, cooking, and numerous other contests that help develop leadership, communication, and life skills. These young people continue to impress us with their work ethic, sportsmanship, and dedication to the Angus breed. They truly represent the future of our Association, and that future is bright.

As we look ahead to next year, we're excited that the 2027 National Junior Angus Show will be held in Grand Island, Nebraska. Although the event will be hosted by the Iowa and Minnesota Angus Associations, having Junior Nationals right here in Nebraska gives our members a unique opportunity to support one of the premier events in the Angus breed without traveling far from home. I hope many Nebraska families will make plans to attend, encourage our outstanding juniors, and help welcome Angus enthusiasts from across the country to the heart of cattle country.

Before we get to next year though, I hope you'll make plans to attend the Nebraska Angus Tour, September 27-28, in North Platte. The annual tour is always one of the highlights of the year. It's a chance to visit outstanding Angus operations, see quality cattle, learn from fellow breeders, and spend time with friends who share a passion for the Angus breed. Whether you've attended for years or it's your first time, I encourage you to join us for a great weekend.

Looking ahead, don't forget the American Angus Association Annual Convention, November 13-16, in Louisville, Kentucky. The convention offers valuable educational opportunities through Angus University and Learning Lounge sessions, along with important Association business and the National Angus activities. While you're there, you'll also have the opportunity to attend the North American International Livestock Exposition (NAILE) Junior Angus Show, making it a great week of learning, fellowship, and outstanding Angus cattle.

As always, thank you for your continued support of the Nebraska Angus Association. I look forward to seeing many of you at the Nebraska Angus Tour this fall and throughout the coming year.

Warm regards,

Danny Poss

Hello Angus Family,

As I look ahead to serving as President of the Nebraska Junior Angus Association this year, I'm excited about the opportunities we have as an association. I hope this year is one where every member feels welcome, involved, and encouraged to participate.

One of my biggest goals is to improve communication and help every junior know what's happening and how they can get involved. Whether you've been a member for years or are just getting started, I want everyone to feel like they have a place in our association. Sometimes all it takes is a friendly invitation or a little extra information to help someone take that first step.

This year is especially exciting because the National Junior Angus Show will be held in Nebraska next summer. It gives us an incredible opportunity to showcase our state, welcome families from across the country, and introduce even more young people to the Nebraska Junior Angus Association. I hope we can use this event to grow our membership and encourage new juniors to become involved long after the show is over.

Leadership isn't about one person—it's about working together. I encourage every member to attend events, meet someone new, and step outside their comfort zone. The friendships, leadership skills, and experiences you gain through the Junior Angus Association are truly one of a kind.

I'm looking forward to serving alongside our junior board, advisors, and members. Together, I know we can make this a fun, successful year while building an even stronger future for the Nebraska Junior Angus Association.

Warmest regards,

Payton Scott

Braxton has been very active in competitions in Nebraska, Nevada, Montana, Oklahoma, and Wisconsin. He has also participated in Angus Raising the Bar and LEAD leadership events.

Braxton's involvement is rooted in family tradition and the legacy of raising quality livestock. Angus cattle have been a part of the family operation and continuing that legacy gives him a sense of pride and responsibility. This passion continues to grow as Braxton has been employed with Dal Porto Livestock, working daily with show cattle along with his own herd, learning and growing within the industry.

Through involvement with the Angus breed Braxton states, "the breed offers leadership, education, and community opportunities through junior associations and activities. Through these I have grown personally and professionally, gaining valuable lessons in communication, responsibility, and agriculture. I am excited to continue growing and learning alongside some of the best in the breed."

Braxton will attend UNL this fall and major in Agribusiness. He intends to continue to grow his herd and mentor others looking to become involved in the programs offered.

JessaLynn Hudson

My name is JESSALYNN HUDSON, a native of Belvidere, Nebraska, where I was raised on a diversified cow/calf and farming operation in the southeast region of the state. It was there that my passion for the Angus breed took root. I began exhibiting Angus heifers in 2016 and attended my first National Junior Angus Show in Grand Island, Nebraska. Since then, I have remained actively involved in the Nebraska Junior Angus Association, serving in various leadership capacities and broadening my experience through participation in numerous national competitions. Currently, I am pursuing a degree in Animal Science and Agricultural Communications, with a minor in the Krutsinger Beef Industry Scholars at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. My long-term goal is to continue establishing an Angus herd while remaining engaged in the Angus community, with the intention of giving back to the Nebraska Angus Association and supporting the next generation of producers.

OUR ANGUS FAMILY OBITUARIES

JEFFREY R. "JEFF" LOVETT passed away peacefully surrounded by his loving family after a courageous battle with pancreatic cancer on July 15th.

Jeff was the cherished husband of Sandy Lovett; devoted father of Cheyann (Clayton) Boyles, Montana (Heath) Schroeder, Dakota Lovett, (Maddie Matuszewski) and Bristol Lovett; proud grandfather to Maylee, Kane and Nora whom he adored; beloved brother of Courtney (Shelly) Lovett; cherished son-in-law of Joyce Flesher; and dear brother-in-law of Doug Flesher. He was preceded in death by his parents, Terry and Joyce Lovett; his father-in-law, Bill Flesher; and his sister, Angie Scheideler (John Scheideler).

Jeff was born on September 24, 1969, in Cincinnati, Ohio. An active FFA member at Benjamin Logan High School, he developed a lifelong passion for showing cattle. He later attended The Ohio State University, ATI in Wooster, Ohio, where he earned his degree and met the love of his life, Sandy.

Jeff and Sandy were married on August 24, 1991, and shared nearly 35 years of marriage filled with love, partnership, and devotion to family. Later that year, they moved to their cattle operation in Nebraska and founded Hidden Valley Angus. Together, they built a successful Angus operation that produced numerous champion cattle at the local, state, and national levels.

A proud third-generation member of the family business, Jeff served as Vice President of Lovett & Sons Meat Packing in Hastings, Nebraska, and helped lead Hi Point Beef in Bellefontaine, Ohio. He was an active member and board member of National Meat Association frequent speaker at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's Beef 101 program.

Jeff spent 22 years as a cattle buyer for American Foods Group, where he was known for his willingness and enjoyment to mentoring interns entering the industry. Most recently, he and his family relocated to Kentucky, where he served as Lead Buyer for AFG's Eastern Region. Wherever his work took him, from local sale barns to cattle markets across the nation, Jeff built lasting friendships and earned the respect of those around him.

Jeff was deeply committed to supporting youth in agriculture, serving as President of the Webster County 4-H Council and, alongside Sandy, as an advisor to the Nebraska Junior Angus Association. Most recently, he served as a judge for the National 4-H Livestock Quiz Bowl Competition at the North American in Kentucky.

Beyond his many professional accomplishments, Jeff's greatest pride was the family he and Sandy built together. He loved his children and grandchildren deeply and was immensely proud of each of them.

Jeff was a devoted fan of The Ohio State Buckeyes, the Cincinnati Bengals and Reds. He loved gathering family and friends around the grill, where his prime rib, ribs, and brisket became legendary among those fortunate enough to enjoy them.

Jeff will be remembered for his unshakable work ethic, generous spirit, dedication to agriculture, and unwavering love and loyalty to his family. Through his mentorship, friendship, and service to others, he touched countless lives. His legacy will live on in the family he cherished, the youth he inspired, and the many friends and colleagues fortunate enough to know him.

Burial will be at Blue Valley Cemetery in Ayr, NE. In lieu of flowers, the family requests those wishing to make contributions in Jeff Ralph Lovett's memory to do so to the Ralph S. Lovett Scholarship fund (Fund 604326) at The Ohio State University Foundation, PO Box 736096 Chicago, IL

KENT L. SMITH was born in Ainsworth, NE on September 3, 1955 to George Ira Smith and Clarice Cleo Bolich, and passed away on June 28, 2026 in Bassett, NE. He was raised on the ranch south of Bassett along with his sister, Rennae. Kent attended the Sybrant School which was a tradition for the Smith Family. Kent's great-grandma, Laura Maurer taught there and lived with Pauly and Bessie Lanz during her tenure at the school. Pauly and Bessie may have had something to do with Laura meeting their neighbor, Ira Smith, and the rest is history. Kent's father, George and his sister, Alice, Kent and his sister, Rennae, and his son, Trevor all attended Sybrant School through the eighth grade. Kent graduated from Rock County High School in 1973. He attended Chadron State College for one year, after which he returned to the ranch to join the family operation.

On June 5, 1976, Kent and Faye Croghan tied the knot in this very church, and headed to the ranch 26 miles southeast of Bassett with a lot of hopes and dreams. Kent and Faye fixed up a tenant house on the ranch and called it home. They were blessed with two boys, Trevor Kent and Cameron Kade. Those two boys were Kent's pride and joy, even if they insist they got very few "Atta boys!" at the end of a long day. Before they had kids, Kent always liked to have Faye ride along with him when he would check cattle and pastures. Faye wasn't raised on a ranch so this was a totally new experience for her. They would go through gate after gate, and Faye would get turned around, but she didn't want him to know that. She would casually ask Kent, "Whose house are we driving by?" Kent's reply was "Pauly and Bessie Lanz." They would go by another place and Faye would again ask, "Whose place is that?" Kent would patiently say, "Bill and Carolyn Sybrant." Faye saw a place with a lot of beautiful trees on it and asked Kent again, "Who lives there?" His head whipped around in disbelief as he said, "we do!" And now, 50 years later here, we are here to pay tribute to this amazing man.

In Kent and Faye's early years, they made some big decisions and took a very large risk when Kent decided to purchase the registered K+ cowherd from the Jerry Kirwan family and he trailed them home. When Kent got home, he asked Faye, "What do you think we should do with these cows?" Faye shrugged her shoulders, and said, "I don't know, what do you think we should do?" And Kent asked, "Wanna have a bull sale?" And the rest is history.

Kent was a definite risk taker, and during his tenure on the ranch he purchased the home place from his dad. In 1999, he purchased the Linke place from his lifelong neighbors, Karl and June Linke. Karl and his family wanted Kent to own part of their property and they chose not to put it up for sale with a realtor. Kent and Faye didn't even have to go to the bank for a loan. The Linke's carried them for several years until they got it paid off. They will never forget the kindness of that family and all they have done for them throughout the years. After Kent's aunt, Alice Van Norman passed away, he purchased the ground "over west" from his Van Norman cousins. His final act of securing the operation for the future came in the last few years when he purchased the ground "down south" from his mother, Clarice.

Legacies are sometimes thought of as the "material stuff" that you leave behind. But for Kent, none of that was important. He gave his sons, Trevor and Cameron hands on experience growing up because it took the whole family to make it all work. The boys experienced hard life lessons that they didn't always appreciate, but they are what have made them the strong and confident men they are today. He gave them a love and respect for the land, and taught them if you take care of the land, it will always take care of you. But most importantly, he instilled in them a work ethic that is second to none. He knew these were the things they would need to lead a good and successful life. Kent loved his sons very much, and was proud of the fathers they have become. Whether it was watching Trevor coach the basketball and football teams for Aubrey and Teddy, or Cameron packing up a bag with diapers, books to read, and a pillow so that Ella Kate could go help him bale hay, all of those were moments that Kent cherished with his children.

Somehow Kent knew the secret to a good life long before anyone wrote about it in a song, "Do what you love and call it work!" Kent loved and took care of his family through the good and tough times. What a strong legacy this rancher, husband, father and grandfather leaves behind for all of us to follow.

Kent was preceded in death by his father, George in 2000. He leave to mourn his passing, his wife, Faye of Bassett; sons, Trevor (Amber) Smith of Cohagen, MT and Cameron (Hannah) Smith of Bassett; three grandchildren, Aubrey, Teddy and Ella Kate Smith; mother, Clarice of Bassett; sister, Rennae (Alvin) Ruiz of Torrington, WY; along with numerous other family members.

Funeral Service was held on Friday, July 3, 2026 at the Bassett Methodist Church with Pastors Andrea Schadel and Joel Wentworth officiating at the event. The CD selections of "Dirt Cheap" and "Till You Can't" by Cody Johnson and "One More Day" by Diamond Rio were played. Casketbearers were: "Faye's Magnificent Seven" Butch Fischer, Ben Fischer, Keith Ammon, Kurt Ammon, Curt Luther and Jake Maurer. Honorary Casketbearers were: All of Kent's Other Neighbors & Friends. Specials remarks/memories were given by Teddy and Aubrey Smith, Payton Shankland and Jacob Maurer with a eulogy given by Bim Nelson. Memorials were suggested to the family in Kent's name for a future designation. Interment was in the Sybrant Cemetery under the direction of the Hoch Funeral Home of Bassett. Online condolences may be left for the family at www.hochfuneralhome.com. Dear Nebraska Angus Association,

BRENT CATTLE COMPANY Based in Faith

Nestled in the rolling hills of Nebraska's Loess Canyons near Maywood, Brent Cattle Company is owned and operated by Matthew and Lacey Brent, alongside their sons, Graidy and Memphis. Our first priority is to bring glory to God in everything He has called us to care for. Our second is the family He has entrusted to us. Every day, we strive to instill integrity, diligence, compassion, and stewardship into our boys, believing the greatest legacy we can leave is not simply a successful ranch, but lives that reflect those same values. To us, cattle are not the mission—they are the ministry.

That philosophy shapes every decision we make. Our breeding program is built on proven maternal genetics, anchored by the Basin Lucy and Summit Crest Empress cow families and strengthened by herd sires such as the Payweight and RainMaker lines. We believe great cattle begin with exceptional females and balanced genetics that perform where they matter most—in the pasture and in the hands of commercial cattlemen.

Our commitment is simple: genetics backed by integrity, where maternal, carcass, and performance genetics come together to add profitability to your way of life while building cow herds that stand the test of time.

Our commitment extends beyond the cattle themselves. We believe we are borrowing this land from the next generation, and whether we are caring for owned or leased pasture, stewardship is at the heart of what we do. Every breeding decision, every pasture rotation, and every customer relationship is another opportunity to serve others well and leave something better than we found it.

Progressive Genetics from Proven Cow Families!

through the very top of a 45-year cow herd - a herd anchored by some of the most influential sires in Angus history.

For TD Angus bulls like New Design 036, New Frontier 095, and Ambush 28 shaped the breed from this very ranch. TD Angus honors that foundation while pushing the envelope with modern curve-bending genetics, including sires like T/D Doc Ryan, the $525,000 standout whose influence continues to elevate the program. The Wasserburgers' goal is clear: create elite feeder cattle capable of hitting Prime while maintaining sustainable, long-lasting maternal strength.

Their path into seedstock wasn't traditional. As a feedlot-focused family, Trey and Dayna saw firsthand the value of high-gaining, high-marbling cattle. When the opportunity arose to carry forward the Rishel legacy, they jumped and they believed in the genetics enough to buy back calves through their own family feedlot in North Platte. That feedlot perspective drives every decision they make today, ensuring TD Angus cattle perform not just on paper, but in the chute, on feed, and on the rail.

TD Angus stands at the intersection of heritage and innovation, a family-run operation committed to building better cattle, supporting commercial producers, and shaping the future of the Angus breed one generation at a time.

DAIGGER-ORR ANGUS & RED ANGUS
Decades in the Making
Diagger-Orr Angus and Red Angus is built on a foundation of hard work, innovation, and commitment to the cattle industry in Nebraska's Sandhills.

John Daigger grew up near Ringgold, Nebraska, where he developed the work ethic and passion for ranching that would shape his future. While working for the Musser family west of Tryon, he met Patricia Winder, whose lifelong connection to livestock and ranch life made them a natural partnership. After marrying in 1965, John and Pat began building their cattle operation, purchasing the Avery Ranch in 1969 and later taking over the Musser Ranch in 1974.

John & Pat Daigger

Their focus on progressive herd management led them to adopt performance records, artificial insemination, carcass evaluation, and ultrasound technology long before these practices became commonplace. The foundation of Daigger Angus was established in 1976 with the purchase of a select group of Angus females that helped shape the herd for decades to come.

John is a Lifetime Member of the American Angus Association and has served on the Nebraska Angus Association Board. In the mid-80s John and Pat sold their first registered Angus bulls in the Nebraska Angus Association Sale in Mullen. They consigned to several sales there before they began a joint production sale with other producers in 1987.

In 1989, the family moved operations to North Platte and launched the first annual Daigger Angus Production Sale, which continues today. Later on, a sale barn was built on site so the annual sale could be hosted right at the ranch headquarters. Many successful sales have occurred in that barn, and many herd sires have sold there. The place southeast of North Platte had the attributes necessary to become a fully functioning bull and heifer development facility that was close to feed and hay supplies. The mama cows stayed on summer grass and winter range at Tryon, but were calved and AIed in North Platte. That is still the current program.

Beyond building a successful cattle operation, John and Pat raised five daughters—Ginger, Mary, Betty, Gladys, and Ruth—instilling in them the values of stewardship, integrity, and a strong work ethic. Their commitment to family and agriculture created a legacy that continues through future generations.

In 2002, the operation expanded into Red Angus genetics. The next generation joined when Ruth Daigger married David Orr in 2005. Ruth purchased her first registered Angus female in 2007, and after a short career with the railroad, David joined the ranch full-time in 2010, forming Daigger-Orr Angus & Red Angus. Known for his exceptional knowledge of the herd, David brings a deep understanding of the cattle and their performance history. Together, David and Ruth are raising five children - Grant, Clay, Blaine, Barrett, and Aubrey - while continuing the family's tradition of excellence in the cattle industry.

The Orr Family

Today, Daigger-Orr Angus, Red Angus, and now SimAngus combines the experience and vision of multiple generations, producing practical performance-driven Angus, Red Angus, and SimAngus cattle while upholding the values of stewardship, integrity, and hard work established by John and Pat more than six decades ago.

GRAFF CATTLE Rich in History

Graff Cattle headquartered 7 ½ miles east of Ogallala is owned by Chuck Graff. Registered livestock since 1898 has been part of the inherited genetics in Chuck. Graff cattle is a family operation with the cattle calving in the valley where longhorns were trailed from Texas to the rail yards in Ogallala in 1874. Black Angus are the prominent breed throughout western Nebraska and Graff genetics support many producers in the area. Yes, the commitment comes naturally “it’s not what we are But Who we are”.

Having grown up in an Angus herd located at Bancroft in Cuming County with a rich history in cattle feeding, a true appreciation of performance and carcass was natural.

Graff Cattle incorporates ET, AI and top nature vice sires in their breeding program. Structural soundness and movement are a first and foremost breeding selection requirement. Carcass and maternal traits have always been emphasized over the last 50 plus years of which 40 have been at Ogallala and with additional DNA input such as congestive heart failure input is a constant enjoyable challenge. An annual bull sale is the first Saturday in February. Chuck is committed to breeding registered cattle and as a reliable source of top genetics to beef producers. Chuck will keep doing so “till the creek doesn’t rise.”

TWISTED J ANGUS A Focused, Family-Driven Angus Program in Central Nebraska

In the hills around Arnold, Nebraska, the Jenkins family, Jason and Holly, along with their sons Jhett and Jarrett operate Twisted J Angus, a registered Angus herd built on intentional breeding and practical, profitable cattle. Though Twisted J Angus has been operating for ten years, its foundation reaches back to Holly’s family, the Grabouskis of Beatrice, Nebraska. Her grandfather ran Greenview Farms, her uncles began raising registered Angus in the 1970s, and her mother was active in the Nebraska Junior Angus Association, later serving as Nebraska Angus Princess and Queen. Those early influences still shape the Jenkins herd today. Jason’s path began in California, but time spent on his family’s ranch in Arnold sparked his love for Nebraska. He moved permanently in 2013, started a commercial herd, and after he and Holly established their home, they purchased their first registered heifer in 2016. That decision marked the shift toward building a quality registered Angus program.

Today, Twisted J Angus runs about 40 registered cows on 600 owned and leased acres. Their breeding program incorporates proven sires such as Sitz Resilient 10208, TEF Outside 514, Barstow Cash, and BA7 Oaks Bold Ruler. Jason’s work for a nearby ranch where he’s involved in cow-calf production, retained replacements, finishing cattle, farming, and haying. It gives him a broad understanding of what traits matter across the beef industry. With Holly managing much of the day-to-day work (often with two young boys at her side), docility is a top priority, along with structural soundness, fertility, and longevity. The family also raises a small number of Quarter Horses, blending Holly’s lifelong interest in bloodlines and conformation with their cattle philosophy: animals should be attractive, functional, and capable.

Twisted J Angus markets bulls through the Nebraska Bull Test each March and sells private treaty. Replacement heifers are offered after weaning in the fall, either private treaty or through Broken Bow Livestock. Many of their customers are neighbors, friends, and family, which gives the Jenkins family the unique advantage of watching their bulls mature and seeing calf crops firsthand. That feedback has become a cornerstone of their breeding decisions.

Jason and Holly have set for goals for Twisted J Angus. Their short-term goal aims to provide genetics that improve commercial herds while maintaining fundamentals like sound structure, good feet, quality udders, fertility, and disposition. Long-term, they strive for predictable, consistent genetics and a reputation built on trust.

BALDRIDGE-TIEDEMAN ANGUS Sixty Years

Baldrige- Tiedeman Angus welcomes you to the Nebraska Angus Tour, and will be displaying cattle on Sunday, September 27th, at the Lincoln County Fairgrounds. Baldrige-Tiedeman Angus has roots in the North Platte area that stretch for six decades, and is operated by Bob and Becky Tiedeman, and Jake and Lindsay Tiedeman. They also extend their appreciation to Herd Manager and genetic partner, Sage Young and to Tayton Lucas for his help.

The Tiedeman's prioritize progressively balanced seedstock that fit the Sandhills environment. Calving in the Spring and Fall seasons, and using embryo transfer allows the Tiedeman's to expand their proven cow families and create consistent sire groups. Proven cow families that are known to produce herd bulls are a central focus. Those families include the Everelda Entense, Emulota, Forever Lady, Erica of Ellston, and Mary Blackbird cow lines.

To best create a low-stress avenue to match genetics to customers, Tiedeman's offer 100 private treaty bulls each Spring from the ranch. Their female production sale is held in conjunction with Frank Cattle and Genetics each November, near Chappell, Nebraska. The Frank and Tiedeman families work seamlessly to provide gentle, maternally focused genetics that deliver long-term value to their customers.

Hospitality and appreciation of the people in our industry are also important to the Tiedeman family. Becky's father, Jim Baldrige, instilled this perspective in his family. They consider it a privilege to work with fellow cattle producers and always enjoy learning and networking over a tasty steak. Supporting the youth of our industry is also important, and the Tiedeman's are enthusiastic proponents of local 4H, FFA, and Junior Angus activities.

The Tiedeman's are excited to welcome the Nebraska Angus Tour to North Platte and look forward to your visit any time of year!

GROSETH ANGUS A Legacy Built for the Next Generation

As a third-generation beef and seedstock operation rooted in the heart of the beef state, Groseth Angus carries forward a legacy shaped by dedication, resilience, and a deep respect for the cattle industry. What began decades ago with the hard work and vision of the generations before me took on new life in the summer of 2020, when I purchased my first cows going into my junior year of high school. That moment marked the beginning of my own chapter - a commitment to continue my family's legacy while building something uniquely my own.

Today, my focus is on raising high-quality, long-lasting Angus cattle that stand the test of time. Every animal in this herd is built with purpose: sound feet, strong udders, structural integrity, and the kind of growth and performance that matter in real-world conditions. Each breeding decision is intentional, aimed at producing cattle that not only excel in the pasture but elevate the herds they go on to influence.

Groseth Angus is driven by a simple guiding vision: "The next generation of Practical, Predictable, and Profitable Angus cattle." This operation is more than a business. It is a continuation of a family legacy and a promise to do things the right way, to honor the work of those who came before me, and to build cattle that represent the very best of what our state stands for. With every calf born and every decision made, Groseth Angus moves forward with purpose, carrying a proud heritage into the future of the beef industry.

The New Generation of Animal Breeder

The beef industry is one willing to invest in the next generation of producers.

*By Larissa Novo, AGI® Research Associate
July 7, 2026*

In the United States, there are large numbers of young people involved in organizations like the National Junior Angus Association (NJAA), FFA and 4-H; and many are exposed to animal agriculture in hands-on ways. We celebrate when families have the chance to hand down their herds and persist for a century or longer.

While it is clear our industry values mentorship and paying forward lessons learned, how does this translate to the next generation of animal breeders? As more technologies become available and more traits of interest are studied, what are we learning today about the challenges cattle breeders will face tomorrow?

We tend to think new generations will have it easier, but solutions appear at the same speed as new problems show up.

Devices that track health patterns, cameras for monitoring, imaging with gait tracking for lameness, and many other technologies are being implemented into the ranching lifestyle. We have robots sweeping and pushing the food in dairy operations, milking cows and somehow before we noticed, we're witnessing the Jetsons' way of farming.

Automation may decrease the need for manual labor for current and future generations, but it also demands niche knowledge. The next generation might not need to be constantly driving to a barn in below-freezing temperatures, but they will likely need to know how to operate a drone and to budget for their farm's cloud storage.

Apart from the technology piece, more intensive cattle farming comes with biological challenges as well. More density inside pens, more pressure on finishing time, sexual precocity, faster growing ... all create metabolic stress and increase the burden on the immune system.

New technologies for monitoring health also mean new traits, new selection criteria and breeding strategies. Many options for data-driven selection are already available in the market, and a plethora of indexes and expected progeny differences (EPDs) make the learning curve steeper each year.

"Every expert was once a beginner and as a partner for genetic improvement, AGI and the American

Angus Association are committed to educational efforts for this and future generations." — LARISSA NOVO

Genetic selection for disease resistance will continue to be a priority, whether a new monitoring system is launched or not.

However, health traits are inherently challenging to improve through genetics because of environmental factors that play a role alongside genetics. The next generation of cattle breeders must approach lowly heritable traits of interest in the health space with a disciplined approach to selection.

These selection goals will be influenced by the long-term economics of the operations and outside, sometimes uncontrollable, challenges that are influenced by folks not operating in your farm or ranch. Realistically, no perfect selection goal exists, and trade-offs often are made while acknowledging the limits of genetic selection when the environment is not correctly accounted for.

At the 2026 Beef Improvement Federation's Symposium, economist Derrell Peel of Oklahoma State University shared that the 2025 U.S. calf crop was the smallest since 1941, and the 2025 beef cow inventory was the smallest since 1961. So, on one hand we can be thankful for high prices at a time when supplies are low. On the other hand, animal breeders and their customers (and their customers' customers), are interested in how we can make genetic improvements and make better management decisions to do more with less.

New technologies also mean the bar for basic knowledge changed; and the same way computers replaced pen and paper, newcomers will need to have algorithms in the back of their heads.

While some in-depth knowledge will not be required in the future as some management decisions may be software-based, future animal breeders will need to know a little about everything, from biology to politics.

New generations will have even more access to information, but will still need guidance and a good succession plan. Regardless of databases and profit, ranching is also about families and a way of life.

In uncertain scenarios, what likely won't change for new animal breeders is the importance of economic signals, the desire to simplify selection and the effects of having confidence in the selection tools used.

Every expert was once a beginner and as a partner for genetic improvement, Angus Genetics Inc. (AGI) and the American Angus Association are committed to educational efforts for this and future generations.
